Foundation Funds 200th Mini-Grant Project

The Pierre Educational Foundation awarded two grants for classroom innovation in October. Terri Johnson, T.F. Riggs High School, was awarded $700 to purchase a photo button maker kit for the Governor Store. The Governor Store is run by students to learn business and customer service skills. The Governor Store is able to raise funds to sustain itself by selling spirit wear and other items of interest to students. The Governor Store is open at the high school and during various school events. The grant for a button maker will allow the students to expand their merchandise line and promote school spirit for all grade levels.

Jackie Richey, Jefferson Elementary School, was awarded $195 to create a sensory path on the school playground. The sensory path provides another option for activity for students during recess but also allows teachers to incorporate the sensory path in their classroom lessons. This unique project will incorporate physical activity with learning for all the students at the school.

These grants bring the total number of projects the Foundation has funded to 200! That is 200 innovative classroom ideas brought to life through our generous donors and excellent educators!

Thomas Allerdings is the newest member of the Foundation's Board. Allerdings, General Manager of the Clubhouse Hotel & Suites, is serving as the Chamber of Commerce Representative on the Foundation.

Lindsey Riter-Rapp

we need your help!

Calling all alumni,

As we start to close out the first half of our school year, it has once again become readily apparent to me how much hard work and dedication is involved in educating our children. We are fortunate to have a community of schools, teachers and staff that are committed to making sure our children reach their highest potential. Every day, I am amazed at how our teachers go above and beyond to ensure that our children have the best education.

This struck me a few weeks ago when I introduced myself to a new family in town. The mother immediately commented what a welcoming community Pierre was and how impressed she was with the teachers and schools in our community. I think sometimes it is easy to take for granted the education that our children are receiving and the teachers that make it happen.

The PEF mini-grants are just one way that we can help support our teachers and staff in providing opportunities to expand the horizons of the students in their classroom. It is always exciting to see all the innovative tools teachers are using to reach their students. It is with these tools that teachers are able to find new and exciting ways to reimagine the delivery of education in our schools.

But, we need the support of alumni like you to continue to provide these opportunities to our teachers. Some of the very teachers that may have educated you are still in our schools providing a top-notch education. In fact, just the other day I was at the high school buying tickets for the Governor's football game and I saw a stream of students making their way into English class. Right there on the door it said "Elizabeth Vogt." Instantly, I was flooded with memories of my junior English class. Mrs. Vogt was just another one of the teachers I had at T.F. Riggs that instilled in me a love of learning.

We are so fortunate to have teachers like this in our schools but we need the support of alumni like you, who had an Elizabeth Vogt or another teacher that made a difference in their life, to continue to provide these opportunities for teachers in our community to take their lessons out of the classroom and to expose their student to learning in a whole new way.

This year more than ever we want to reconnect with our alumni, some of you who may still be in our community and some of you who are worlds away. I'm sure you can all look back and remember with fondness a teacher you had who instilled in you the passion you now hold for your job, your family or your own community. We hope you will consider giving back to the teachers and schools that were once a part of your life and now might be a part of your children or grandchildren's life too.

If you have any alumni events planned let us know so we can get them on PEF's calendar. We would also welcome the opportunity to tell your class more about what PEF is doing in our community and the various opportunities that are available to give back to your alma mater. Whether it be donating to our E-Wall of Honor, our PEF mini-grants or establishing a scholarship, we need alumni like you to help us make it possible!

Thank You

Year End Charitable Giving Tips

People have any number of reasons for charitable giving. You may choose to support your personal values and areas of interests with gifts. Or, you may donate with an eye towards your estate and tax planning goals. Whatever your reason for wanting to make a donation, you may consider making a gift to the Pierre Educational Foundation to help further its mission of supporting excellence in education.

Here are some quick charitable giving ideas to help with your year-end planned giving:

1. Consult with your tax advisor.

With the recently passed tax reform, income tax benefits of charitable giving may be more difficult realize each year. Specifically, the doubling of the standard deduction may present a challenge for some individuals and joint filers to itemize their deductions and receive the income tax deduction of a charitable gift.

2. Donate appreciated assets.

With the stock market near record highs, it may make sense to gift highly appreciated individual stocks or mutual funds. You can even donate highly appreciated real estate. A direct gift to a charity can help you avoid capital gains tax and fulfill some your gifting goals.

3. Donate personal property.

I know a lot of people don't enjoy writing checks, so why not donate personal property to your favorite charity!? Whether it's an antique, collectible or jewelry that isn't bringing you any joy, make a difference with a gift to your favorite charity.

4. Make a charitable rollover.

If you are 70 ½ or older and have an IRA account, you can make a charitable rollover to your favorite charity. You don't necessarily get a tax deduction for this, but it does help you avoid paying income tax on the distribution. Make sure you consult your financial and tax advisors to make sure you are eligible for this option and to make sure that the transaction is done properly.

5. Have a plan.

Set specific goals and objectives for your charitable giving. Remember to track your progress to make changes as needed. Make sure that any charitable giving is done with a purpose and doesn't pose any potential adverse consequences to your overall financial stability and health. A completed gift cannot be returned, even if a financial hardship occurs.

6. Gift of Life Insurance

You can transfer ownership of an old life insurance policy to a charity or purchase a new life insurance policy with the charity as the owner and beneficiary. Your premium dollars can guarantee a specific larger gift in the future.

7. Keep it simple.

We live in a fast-paced and complex world. Don't let the numerous options out there keep you from fulfilling your charitable giving goals. If you know of a charitable organization that needs your help, make sure give what you can, when you can.

Book Study Funded by Foundation

The Foundation recently provided funding for a teacher Book Study led by Jennifer Nedrebo and Jackie Richey. The Book Study is a professional development opportunity offered to teachers in the Pierre School District. Funding from the Foundation purchased the Book Study book, Lost at School by Ross Greene, for each of the teachers participating the professional development opportunity.

"The Foundation has long supported classroom projects to help teachers connect lessons and ideas for students in the classroom. Funding a project specific to a teacher's professional development is new for the Foundation," according to Jennifer Stalley, Foundation. "We are excited to be supporting professional development for teachers in such a direct way with this project. The Foundation looks forward to being able to support additional activities, like this Book Study, to directly support our teachers."

The Book Study will be held over a course of weeks this winter with the option for college credit available through the University of Sioux Falls for those who participate.

Our Mission

The Pierre Educational Foundation promotes the further educational development of the Pierre Public School District students, staff and graduates through the delivery of quality educational opportunities and resources.
